PARIS ANGRY WITH HENRI.

Believes That His Defeat Was Due to His Want of Cool Nerve.

Paris, Aug. 18 .- A sensational rumor, which is not yet confirmed, is in circulation that the wound of Prince Henri of Orleans is not healing satisfactorily and that the patient is suffering from high fever. The physicians, it is said, decline to give any definite information as to his condition. According to another rumor the Count of Turin, when Prince Henri was wounded, hurried toward him, greatly agitated, and said: 'I hope it is not serious."

Although the Republicans would fain console themselves with the reflection that Prince Henri's overthrow has killed Orleanism for a generation, French pride, irrespective of party, is deeply hurt by the Italian prince's victory. The French anger is further stimulated by persistent reports that Prince Henri was inferior to his opponent in nerve more than in swordsman ship and was completely overborne by violent, reckless onslaught of the Count of Turin. The opinion is said to have been expressed by the count's seconds that if Prince Henri had had prop-er self-control he had an opening in the second bout which would easily have enabled him to put the Count of Turin hors de combat.

Just Where Thou Art. Just where thou art lift up thy voice,
And sing the song that silrs thy heart:
Reach forth thy strong and eager hand
To lift, to save, just where thou art.
Just where thou standest light thy lamp,
Tis dark to others as to thee;
Their ways are hedged by unseen thorns
Their burdens fret, as thine fret thee.

Out yonder, in the broad full glare
Of many lamps, thine own might pale,
And thy sweet song, amid the roar
Of many voices, slowly fall;
While these, thy kindred, wandered on
Uncheered, unlighted to the end;
Near to thy hand thy mission lies,
Wherever sad hearts need a friend.
